Beyond Soccer Experience: Eder has been involved for 7 years as a soccer dad, and now he's a Coach Mentor!

Education: Benjamin Franklin Institute of Technology, with an Associates in Automotive

Fun Fact: Eder is really funny!

Eder has been with Beyond Soccer for 7 years, and we wish we got him involved #onthefield as a Coach Mentor sooner! He was born in Lima, Peru, but since age 6, was raised in the US. He's a Benjamin Franklin Institute of Technology grad with an Associates Degree in Automotive. He married his high school sweetheart, Orialise, and they have 3 beautiful girls, Mia, Olivia, and Luna. Mia and Olivia have been playing soccer since age 4, and there's nothing more satisfying for Eder than watching them grow up loving the sport and wanting to learn more. In his new role leading the Grade 5-6 Jaguars, he wants to support their continued, positive involvement in sports and other female players.

His love for sports is heavily inspired by Kobe Bryant, with Kobe's role as a girl dad especially significant. It is why Eder wants to help bring more attention and resources to girls and women in sports, including guiding his daughters and all the girls on the Jaguars squad to success, both on and off the field, just as Kobe began for his daughter, Gigi.

Why Eder wants to Coach: He wants to teach youth and see their growth, including not only teaching them about sports but also about responsibility, leadership, and discipline.

Fun Facts about Eder! Once you get to know him, you'll learn that he's really funny. Also, growing up, he was always that kid who was bigger for his age. That meant the coaches could not believe his age when signing up for youth football and would place him on older teams to compete with and against bigger and stronger players. But it didn't stop him. It motivated him!
